WHEN CLOSING THE CHANNELS OF COMMUNICATION...

✍MsLadyGrim

When you close the channels of communication, you don't just silence voices: you condemn ideas to oblivion, weaken trust, and fuel the spread of misinformation. Communication is more than an exchange of words; it's a bridge that sustains coexistence, progress, and peace. When that bridge collapses, society is isolated on islands of misunderstanding, where assumptions replace facts and fear replaces dialogue. 4A

NEW ALLIANCE TAKE THE SPOTLIGHT; KOI RETURNS TO THE NAP

✍MsLadyGrim

After few seasons, the alliance Koi returns to NAP 7. PA13 placed #3, leaving PRG without the third-place medal. RIŞE and NWE remain undefeated and maintain their #1 and #2 positions in their respective order.

The Patrol 2.0 [PA13] was an alliance from State 94 that migrated to State 89 in the fourth season and remained with fewer than 60 members. Initially, it remained in #7, the last alliance on the list that can be within the NAP.

Meanwhile, the defunct Why-So-Serious [WSS] alliance was going through an internal power crisis. Its strongest and leading members, both Industrial 5s with positions of R5 and R4, left the alliance and joined NewEra [NWE]. Zunyah assumes leadership and seeks a merger with PA13, distributing almost half of its members to Koi, some joining XOXO and others joining ~DAD.

CelestialKoi (Koi) held positions between 8th and 9th for several seasons. Before WSS's merger with PA13, the alliance held 8,419,221,038 members. As of this writing, they have 10,289,921,250 members, holding the seventh position among the strongest alliances in State 89.

According to Luxury Time's records, the powers of the 7 most powerful alliances in State #89 were as follows last week:

1. RIŞE: 30,825,281,415
2. NWE: 27,219,729,970
3. PRG: 25,291,137,679
4. WSS: 20,765,247,716
5. ~DAD: 16,925,139,042
6. PA13: 15,394,176,142
7. XOXO: 15,238,151,765

Currently, the board changes as follows:

1. RIŞE: 32,895,734,281
2. NWE: 32,850,810,130
3. PA13: 28,558,441,326

PA13 BREAKS THE SEASON 3 STATUS QUO

The Patrol 2.0 [PA13] alliance wins the level 6 territory after fighting for its control against PURGATORY [PRG]. It was expected that PRG would once again take and maintain control of the max-level territory, as they did last season.

We asked QueenB1313, co-R5 of PA13, about how it feels to have achieved this achievement. She expressed, "I feel great! I'm so proud of everyone in our alliance. We busted our tails to get the VR necessary to try and compete for level 6."

Given the expectations the topic generated in the world chat, we asked if she had thought about losing control of the territory. She responded, "We knew there was going to be some great competition heading our way. Nothing is ever 100%. If we didn't win, then it was going to be close."

"Based off the graphs in the previous (Luxury Time newspaper) edition, and PRG has a lot of strong and active players. We've been playing tag for 3rd rank alliance for a while, so we knew it was going to come down to the wire," she expressed in response to her knowledge of a close fight.

PA13's co-R5 closes with a message to PRG "Thank you for the great competition for the lvl 6. I'm so happy to see so many from both sides so active."

We asked BLÅCKSTØRM for an interview and he sent us a press release saying that "On behalf of PRG, I would like to extend my gratitude to everyone who joined and contributed during the recent event. While we ultimately did not secure victory, we fully acknowledge the efforts made by those who were present. With only 30 members available online to assist, the outcome was foreseeable based on our monitoring and availability checks over the past few days."

He continued by saying that they will still observing how the situation in State 89 will develop as we approach Season 5, "That being said, if the current climate of imbalance and favoritism in State 89 continues, we may need to consider alternative options, similar to the decision NWE has made for after Season 4. This is not a decision we take lightly, but one we would approach with careful thought and for the long-term well-being of our members." We asked if he will take territory 6 and he said that "No, we will not. We will let them have it."

WHEN CLOSING THE CHANNELS OF COMMUNICATION...

MsLadyGrim

When you close the channels of communication, you don't just silence voices: you condemn ideas to oblivion, weaken trust, and fuel the breeding ground for misinformation. Communication is more than an exchange of words; it is a bridge that sustains coexistence, progress, and peace. When that bridge collapses, society is isolated on islands of misunderstanding, where assumptions replace facts and fear replaces dialogue.

Keeping the channels of communication open, regardless of differences, tensions, or crises, is vital because only then can we preserve the possibility of finding common solutions. Listening doesn't mean agreeing, but rather recognizing the humanity of others. History shows that great progress doesn't come from monologues, but from constant conversation, even in the midst of conflict.

Leaders like Nelson Mandela, who dialogued with his adversaries even from prison, or Mahatma Gandhi, who opened his ears and his voice to all communities in India, understood that words are a more powerful tool than force. Their achievements were the result of reaching out rather than raising a fist. On the contrary, those who chose to close the channels of communication—from dictators who censored the press to governments that refused to negotiate in critical moments—ended up leaving behind divisions, repression, and violence that lasted for generations.

The consequences of shutting down communication are clear: polarized societies, loss of institutional trust, conflicts that fester, and, in many cases, the outbreak of violence. It's not just about politics; in companies, families, or communities, imposed silence always ends up being more costly than uncomfortable dialogue.

In times where the immediacy of social media and the multitude of voices seem like noise, the answer is not to turn off the channels, but to learn to filter, process, and respond with intelligence and respect. True strength lies not in protecting ourselves from others, but in building the capacity to converse even with those we think won't listen.

Shutting down communication is like turning off a lighthouse in the middle of a storm: you may not see what's coming, but you condemn everyone to shipwreck. As long as there is a voice willing to speak and an ear willing to listen, there will always be a path to finding solutions. Because hope resides in dialogue, and without hope, there is no possible future.

The global chat room offers us a gem of irony. While MsLadyGrim, from the powerful RI$E alliance, orders a fish, KingSmo0thie cracks a joke that reads between the lines: his "hahaha, they let you into Rise, yeah, that place is doomed" is the joke of the week. Is the alliance's fate in jeopardy due to its internal conflicts? What's clear is that, amidst all the drama, there's always room for a little humor.

HEART.

The global chat, always filled with mundane requests, paused for a moment before a message that broke all the rules. In the midst of requests for fish, MsLadyGrim threw a barb at Jess: "I need your heart, is it available?" Jess's confusion was epic, but the magic was broken by the quick clarification: "That's a strange translation." In the end, the greatest passions in the game aren't the battles, but those provoked by an automatic translator having a bad day.

With RI$E taking over the Capital for the third consecutive time, McFifa becomes the fifteenth Federal President of the 89th State. The dispute over the Capital was between RI$E and NWE.

The Luxury Time team contacted the new President, but he declined an interview. We also contacted the outgoing President, Fear Srb, who stated, "I wish everyone good health and fortune and that they have fun instead of spreading hate."

"WE WILL BE TAKING A BREAK FROM ASSISTING", PRG'S R5 SAID

✍MsLadyGrim

After losing Territory 6, BLACKŠTØRM, PRG's R5, declares that he will no longer help or defend State #89, this comes after the Luxury Time team asked him if he has any message for PA13.

"For now, congratulations on the victory. I hope the top three alliances will fulfill their responsibility to defend against invaders and showcase their strength in the upcoming State of Supremacy. As for us in PRG, we will be taking a break from assisting and defending other alliances during Kill Events. I also hope they won't follow the example of those in leadership who simply stay shielded and inactive during Kill Events."

This arose due to PRG's dispute with PA13 over control of territory 6. There were members of both alliances who complained that the game became saturated and they could not attack the territory with their APCs because they were sent to a corner of the map and others where they could not select territory 6 due to saturation.
